OVERVIEW

Helium Credit is a dynamic and flexible diversified bond fund, primarily invested in Europe and predominantly in Investment Grade-rated credit instruments.
Its average duration is close to four years, but may vary depending on the opportunities identified and the investment team's convictions.
In addition to income generated through carry, the fund seeks to generate alpha through active management, based on selecting undervalued securities, analysing corporate events, investing in convertible bonds, and implementing arbitrage strategies.
The fund may use leverage, particularly when the investment team identifies a number of highly attractive investment opportunities. Credit exposure through leverage may therefore reach up to twice the fund's net assets.
Helium Credit aims to outperform the Bloomberg Euro-Aggregate Corporate Index Hedged CHF, a broad benchmark representative of the euro-denominated corporate credit market (index ticker: LECPTRCH). The fund's investments are not constrained by, and are made without regard to, the composition of its benchmark. The fund is expected to diverge from its benchmark.
